XXI Annual Meeting of the Valdai International Discussion Club

IV Young Scientists Congress

Russian History: State. Civilization. External World, A. Torkunov, V. Degoev

The book tells about the unique historical path taken by Russia for more than ten centuries — from small early feudal principalities, often on the verge of destruction, to the world's largest mainland empire, which took the form and essence of a state-civilization.

supported by Endowment MGIMO

The concentration of all extra-departmental research activities of the university in the MGIMO Institute for International Studies was completed, in 2024 it was transformed into a full-fledged research and analytical center combining two main directions of activity — applied foreign policy and scientific research.
